

Chapter 1 - Introduction of JISF

- Introduction of JISF

Introduction of JISF

E-Governance is the public sector's use of information and communication technologies with the aim of improving information and service delivery and making government more accountable, transparent and effective. The traditional communication system and the development approach for Judiciary solutions will create a chaotic situation when a different vendor uses different choices of technology, platform, framework, manual communication apps and it becomes difficult to maintain interoperability. A development framework enables all the vendors as well as the whole system and software developers-stakeholders to develop quality software, system communication as well as excellent interoperability because it is easy to understand the role. Under these circumstances, JISF (Judiciary Information and Service Framework) is introduced to solve those problems.

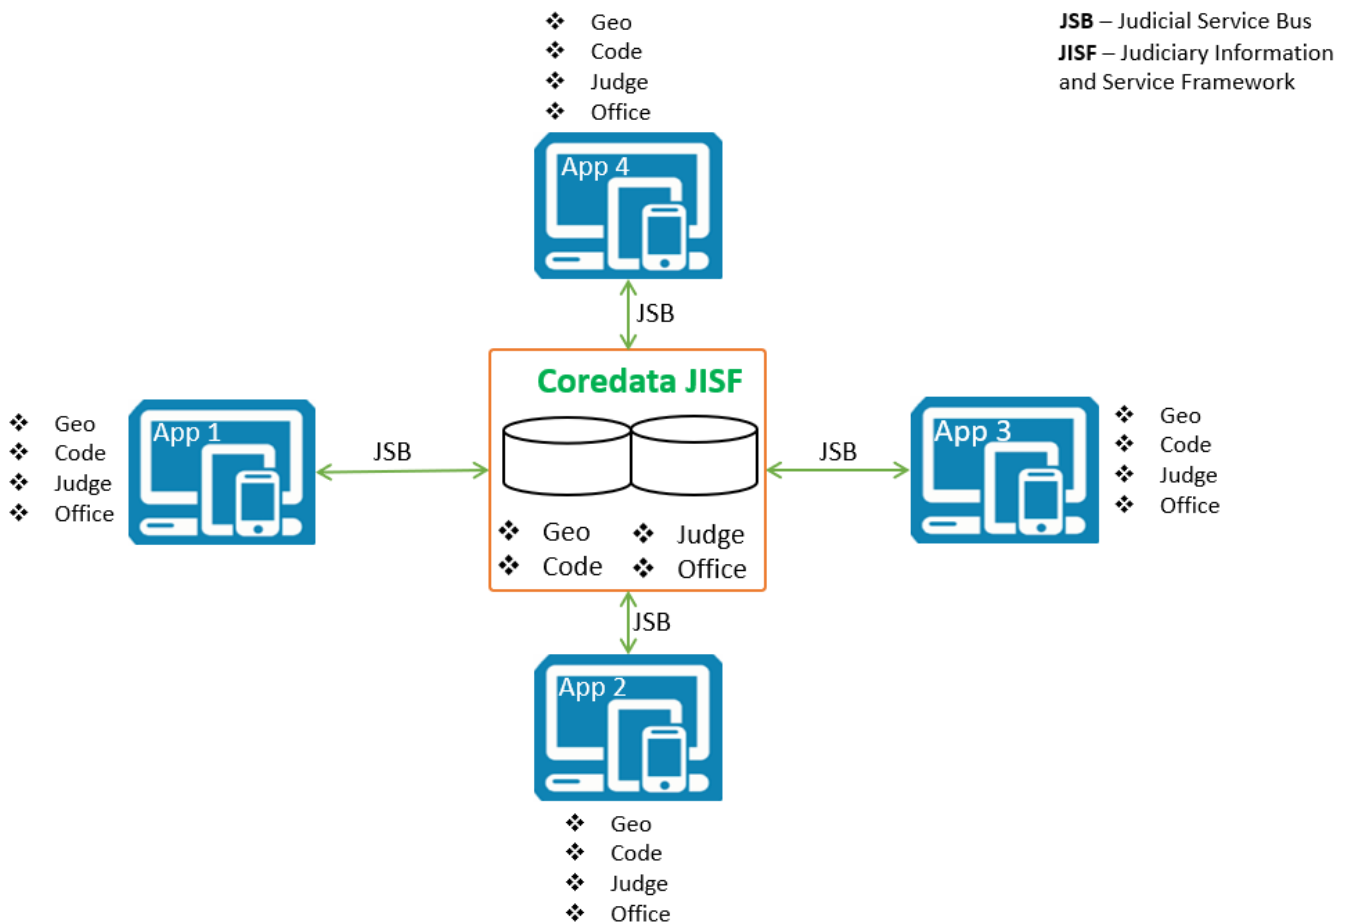

Figure 01 : JISF Model for All stakeholder

